

HE'S SHARPLY.

The Ex-Mayor Makes Pointed Remarks to the Southern Society.

IT WAS AN IMPROVISED SPEECH.

He Excoriates the South's Present Representatives in Congress for Their Action.

MR. HILL SCORED, BUT NOT BY NAME.

Praise for Southerners in New York, but Censure for Those Who Represent That Section in Congress.

HERE'S MRS. PECK AGAIN.

She is a Notorious Confidence Woman and Has a Chum Who Helps Her Swindle Folks.

AN ALLEGED ALLY NOW IN JAIL.

The Sad Experience of Lippman Thorn with a Woman Who Owned a Visionary Marble Company.

Mr. Ellen P. Peck, one of the most notorious and skillful confidence women in the country, dubbed by the police "The Confidence Queen," has been heard of again. She is masquerading under the name of Mrs. Knight.

The World told last week of the arrest of Stephen A. Dutton, of No. 77 Cedar street, who was taken to Ludlow Street Jail in default of $2500 bail upon a warrant issued by Judge Taylor, in the Court of Common Pleas, charged with having defrauded Lippman Thorn, a cigar dealer, of No. 210 Greenwich street, out of $4000.

It appeared that two women, one known as Mrs. Knight and the other as Ellen P. Peck, were connected with the alleged fraud. Mrs. Peck was charged with having defrauded Lippman Thorn, a cigar dealer, of No. 210 Greenwich street, out of $4000.

BURIAL AT COST PRICE.

Nathan Straus Plans an Undertaking Shop for the Benefit of the Bereaved Poor.

The deserving poor will be extended during the coming fortnight. He will establish an undertaking shop, where poor persons may be provided with attendance at cost prices in the event of death in their families.

As yet I have only the purpose, no exact plans have been formulated," said Mr. Straus yesterday. "I believe that it is one of the essentials at this time and in this city. Many instances have been received by undertakers, death in the house of a poor man means, in some cases, that a loved child, parent or relative must be given over into the hands of strangers, with perhaps, the chance of having an unknown and unmarked grave. I speak especially of the class of laborers to whom death is not only a sorrow in itself, but means also a loss of the family support. I am going to have charge of the fourth lodging house which I have opened in Westchester street, for the benefit of women. The exact location has not yet been decided.

WEPT OVER HER DEAD BOY.

Mrs. McGibney Thinks that Brockway Was the Cause of His Death, and Wails Over the Coffin.

LETTERS WHICH DID NOT ARRIVE.

Unimportant Communications Seemed to Go All Right, but Others Disappeared on the Way.

The body of poor Daniel J. Mahoney, the only son of Widow Nellie McGibney, was brought to this city yesterday. Mahoney, when not quite eighteen years old, on Aug. 12, 1882, was sentenced from this city to the Elmira Reformatory. When the boy bled his mother fairly well, he was the picture of health. Not a day's sickness had he known in his life.
